Nadia Jones Gailani is a Visiting Assistant Professor of Gender and History at Central European University in Budapest. Having graduated in 2013, she took up a three-year Postdoctoral Fellowship in the Department of History at the University of South Florida (2013-2016). She recently submitted her first book manuscript for publication with the University of Toronto Press. The book explores the memories and identities of Iraqi women refugees who have resettled in Jordan, Canada and the U. S. over the past three decades. With a new focus on Muslim feminism(s) and women's political subjectivity in the Modern Arab World, her research interests focus on individual life histories and what these can tell us about women's day-to-day experiences of war, loss, and displacement.
